Curia opening at 7:13

First – Acilaldai, Second – Tiberius

In the absence of a moot, vote to confirm interim officers (Maud – Chatelaine and Eudes - Webminister) by lack of populace dissent.

Genovefa asked if it was legal to elect officers without populace consent. Acilaldai confirmed that the only legal requirement to elect officers is superior officer approval and Seneschal approval. Affirmation by the Curia and the Populace is done as a courtesy but is not required. Genovefa asked if there are any rules to prevent us from keeping them as interim officers until they can be affirmed by the populace. There are not. Tadea verified in SCA laws and our SOPs that there is no requirement for populace affirmation to elect new officers. Tadea proposed that we table the vote for now and post a message to the Barony mailing list clearly outlining the issue and stating that if there no objections to the appointments by such and such a date, the officers will be confirmed in their positions. It was decided instead that we would vote to confirm the officers.

First – Reinhardt, Second - Alke

For Eudes

Vote – 9 in favour, 2 abstentions

For Maud

Vote – 9 in favour, 2 abstentions

Both motions passed

2. CellachDonn – In Spring 2018 it will be IDD’s turn to host Tir Mara University, Tir Mara Rattan Championship and Tir Mara A&S Championship. Are we interested in doing an event the first weekend of June to combine all of these events into 1 (weekend event)? The site they have in mind needs to be booked soon as it is very popular. The curia is generally in favour of doing this. Further discussion will take place on the list.

*It was later announced on the list that IDD will not be hosting Tir Mara University until 2019, so there is no need for a weekend event. The Rattan and A&S Championships can be done at a day event.

3. Chronicler's Report – Reinhardt brought copies of the latest issue of Wyrms Words for everyone's perusal and it will be published tonight, along with the three previous issues which were too big to be printed. Peter inquired about the language of publication as the issue is in a combination of French and English. Reinhardt said that he always publishes the articles in the languages that they are provided to him as translation is very time-consuming. It was proposed that at the very least, the front page and table of contents should be bilingual. Reinhardt suggested that the word of welcome on the front page should be done by a different officer every issue. The standard for past issues has been to have a word from Their Excellencies and a word from the Seneschal. Further discussion about the format of the newsletter should happen on the mailing lists.

4. Eudes asked if any of the officers have any content that they would like to add for the new website before it goes live.
